EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order establishes a scheme of anonymous registration for people for whom the publication of their name and address on the electoral register would pose a threat to safety. This may include victims of domestic violence, witnesses in certain criminal cases and other vulnerable people who may wish to vote but are afraid that certain individuals may use the electoral register to establish their whereabouts.

Provision for anonymous registration in Great Britain was made by section 10 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006, which inserted sections 9B and 9C into the Representation of the People Act 1983 (the “1983 Act”). Part 1 of Schedule 1 to the Electoral Administration Act 2006 made consequential amendments. Those provisions did not extend to Northern Ireland. Section 1 of the Northern Ireland (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2006 provides for a power to make equivalent provision in Northern Ireland.

In February 2008 the Government consulted on making provision for anonymous registration in Northern Ireland (Anonymous registration: Protecting voters at risk in Northern Ireland). The Government published its response to consultation in February 2009 and committed to introducing a scheme allowing voters at risk to register anonymously. The response outlined the areas in which the provisions on anonymous registration would differ from those in Great Britain. In September 2013, the Government undertook a further public consultation (Anonymous registration: protecting voters at risk in Northern Ireland), which included draft legislation.

Article 2(1) extends sections 9B and 9C of the 1983 Act to Northern Ireland. Section 9B provides for electors to have an anonymous entry in the electoral register in certain circumstances. If a person is eligible for registration, but fears that his safety or that of another person resident in the same household would be at risk if he were identifiable from the electoral registers, he may apply to have an anonymous entry in the register. An anonymous entry contains only the person’s electoral number and letters prescribed in regulations. Section 9C provides for the circumstances in which an anonymous entry will be removed from the register. Article 3(2) to (3) amends sections 9B and 9C of the 1983 Act to reflect the different legislative framework and policy in Northern Ireland. Unlike in Great Britain, the entitlement to remain registered with an anonymous entry will not terminate after 12 months. Instead, the entitlement to remain registered with an anonymous entry will terminate at the end of a period determined by the Chief Electoral Officer in accordance with regulations. That period can last for up to five years. Article 8(2) provides for sections 9B and 9C of the 1983 Act to apply to local and Assembly elections in Northern Ireland.
